Something a little special - From Sicily we have the local grape Catarrato with 'nowt taken out' - this wine is made from organic grapes, wild yeasts and is unfiltered and unfinned. The Gavi di Gavi and trendy Gruner-Veltliner from Northern Italy and Austria respectively have the perfect climate for elegant herb scented whites that are soft fruited, dry and delicious.

Now for something completely different - Following the 'natural' wine movement this pair benefit from organic and biodynamic practices in the vineyards crucial for full flavoured characterful wines. In the winery minimal intervention is the key, allowing the wines to be born rather than manipulated. From Rioja the Gran Cerdo is a bit of a beast with a story to tell (just read the label), juicy peppery fruit with some joyful wild edges. In Argentina the Cecchin family make old school Malbec with bags of deep wild berry fruit & firm green tannins.
